

Alexander

Standing tall – fine Greek proud youth -Alexander

Tames Bucephalus with the gift of a young horse-whisperer

Standing tall-just a young man so warrior-wise

Demanding loyalty- never tolerating lies

Temper bursts in rages. Anger spills.

No soldier/warrior/army can beat him in a battle of wills.

In control and confident, taunting, “All will lose who fight us”.

Out of control. Anger eruption sends his spear to kill poor Cleitus

Orders Greeks to marry Persian women: hope for Greek and Persia to unite.

Tunnel vision to conquer the world: Attack! Charge! Forward! Fight!

Two sides of the same coin: Alexander -The leader his soldiers completely LOVE or HATE

Surging anger like molten lava. Cool strong granite.

Two sides of the same coin. This is Alexander The Great.
